8th Marines display MAGTF's capabilities

The 8th Marine Regiment demonstrated its capabilities as the command element of the Marine Air-Ground Task Force during Integrated Training Exercise 1-16 aboard the Combat Center, Oct. 23-Nov. 15.

Formerly known as the Combined Arms Exercise, ITX is now one of the largest training exercises Marine Corps units participate in prior to deployment. Approximately 4,000 Marines and Sailors from II Marine Expeditionary Force encompassing the MAGTF participated in ITX 1-16.

"One of the goals of ITX is to bring all the elements of the MAGTF together: the command element, logistics combat element, ground combat element, and your aviation combat element," said the Commanding Officer of 8th Marine Regiment, Col. Martin Wetterauer III. "Often, the first time we get to train as a MAGTF is out here at ITX."

The training at ITX centered on integrating the different abilities of the MAGTF together to create an effective, well-coordinated fighting force. Units gained proficiency in that integration starting at the squad level all the way to the final culminating event which was the Battalion Assault Course.

ITX not only tested the individual units but the command and control capabilities of 8th Marine Regiment.

"The intent of ITX is to focus on 8th Marine Regiment's core and core plus missions. For a regiment, we come out here with roughly 11 [training and readiness standards] that we train to," Wetterauer explained.

No holiday for safety

STORY BY THE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

The holiday season is time for Marines and sailors to enjoy their well-deserved time off celebrating alongside friends and family. During this extended period of liberty, it is important for service members to be mindful of the dangers and risks that go along with it and to ensure that safety doesn't take a holiday.

According to the Provost Marshal's Accident Investigation Division, a significant rise in traffic accidents and collisions on-base has been noticed over the past year due to distracted drivers and driver's paying less attention to their surroundings.

"Driver distraction is the leading factor in traffic accidents," said Capt. Benjamin Gutek, Operations Officer, Provost Marshal's Office. "To be a safe driver involves clear judgment, concentration, and time to react. While traveling to or from work, be aware of your surroundings, eliminate distractions by getting organized before you depart and keep in mind the faster you travel the more following or stopping distance you'll need."

In research AID conducted, drivers who make one claim, end up paying an average of 41 percent more for car insurance. It is not just safer to pay more attention to one's surrounding while operating a vehicle; it is also going to equal to substantial savings on increased insurance costs.

According to the Combat Center Safety Division, fatigued driving and drunk driving are also among some of the most prominent dangers that Marines and sailors face during the holiday season. Before going on liberty, planning ahead can make the difference in a potentially dangerous situation.

"Marines tend to have most issues with fatigue driving when they are returning from the liberty period," said Bob Piirainen, traffic safety program manager, Combat Center Safety Division. "It's important to get rest before driving and if necessary, to spend a little extra money on a hotel room to ensure you are rested for the drive back to base. Before you begin drinking ensure you have a designated driver and have an Arrive Alive Card. Utilizing the buddy

FVAP simplifies absentee voting

When service members take an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States of America, they also vow to defend freedom and the right to vote. Voting is essential to maintaining our democratic republic and is accessible to service members through voting assistance programs.

The Installation Voting Assistance Office and Federal Voting Assistance Program provide Marines, sailors and family members accessibility to vote in upcoming elections.

"Our goal is to reach everyone and simplify the voting process," said Chief Warrant Officer 3 Ikaika Chaves, Installation Voting Assistance Officer.

The program's website, www.fvap.gov, is an effective

Marine Corps' Top Shot

Every week, thousands of fans cast their votes for the best photograph posted on the Corps' Facebook page. This week's top shot comes from Cpl. Akeel Austin.

everything from forming a command operations center, to conducting logistics, conducting fire support planning, offensive operations, defensive operations, and conducting reconnaissance.”

An added layer of training that ITX provides is the effect of the physical environment. “For Marines coming from Lejeune, the desert environment is significantly different than the Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, environment that we’ve been training in,” Wetterauer said. “[Being in Twentynine Palms] takes the Marine from the current training level he was proficient at before we left, he comes out here and we add another layer of problem to it, another layer of complexity, and now he has to go through that to be successful.”

Most importantly, ITX is serving as a training exercise for 8th Marine Regiment for when they assume the command element role of Special Purpose Marine Air-Ground Task Force-Crisis Response-Africa 16.1.

“All the elements that will deploy with the SPMAGTF 16.1 Crisis Response Africa mission are out here conducting ITX. So we are now getting to practice how we will deploy in a few months,” Wetterauer said.

Following ITX, SPMAGTF-CR-AF 16.1 will move directly into their certification exercise with the majority of the command element remaining in California while forward elements will move to the east coast to simulate the geographical distances the unit will have to overcome while deployed.

“We will now move into the missions that are assigned to us as a SPMAGTF, which are embassy reinforcement, non-combatant evacuation operations and quick reaction force,” said Wetterauer.

Wetterauer reiterated that conducting operations in this format is the way ahead for the 8th Marine Regiment and the Marine Corps as whole. “The MAGTF is the basis for how the Marine Corps fights and conducts operations overseas,” Wetterauer said.

tool for voting registration and knowledge on voting requirements for each service member’s home state.

“The website is very easy to utilize,” Chaves said. “Sending your vote home is as simple as filling out a federal post-card application, which is a request for a write-in ballot. When election time comes, [FVAP] will mail you a write-in absentee ballot.”

According to Chaves, using mail-in ballots is the most popular choice for service members to vote in elections according to their legal residence. “You can print the post card application, the write-in absentee ballot, and an envelope that will have pre-printed postage, so you won’t have to pay for it.”

“If you wanted to go to the polls, you would have to go back home to do it, which is why most service members use absentee ballots,” added Chaves.

FVAP recommends registering annually, in order to ensure an updated residential address.

“As a citizen, voting is your duty,” Chaves said. “Do your research and study the candidates so you can make an informed decision based off of your ideals and what you stand for.”

Chaves encourages service members to contact their unit voting officers. Visit www.fvap.gov, or call 1-800-438-8683 to have further questions answered.

system and appointing a designated driver can help to mitigate those risks.”

The Combat Center Safety Division hosts classes such as the Defensive Driving Course Alive at 25 to help improve Marines’ driving habits. In addition, these courses serve to inform Marines of the repercussions of their actions to ensure that they understand how their conduct can affect their careers.

“Think about the consequences before you act,” Piirainen said. “Every year during these longer holidays it comes with a rise in [driving under the influence] and other incidents. One bad decision can end your career.”

Jet arrives for "Sling Shot" trails

Another chapter of Aviation History was written Nov. 28 when a marine super-sonic jet fighter (F4D Skyray) landed and refueled at the Short Airfield for Tactical Support (SATS) that has been undergoing planning, construction and testing here for the last several months.

Capt. Jimmy L. Pappas, test pilot for the SATS project and the Air Field Operations Officer landed his jet aircraft with needle point precision, and will prepare to take off early tomorrow. The concept of the air field enabled Capt. Pappas and his high powered jet to land is similar to an aircraft carrier. That is, it has a "sling" type arresting gear.

The jet aircraft came in on its approach and caught onto a cable that was strung across the runway. Each end of this cable is in turn is connected to nylon tape which is wound around wheels which play out the tape as the aircraft engages the cable.

It enabled the jet to come in at approach speed of better than 160 knots and to be brought to complete rest within 700 feet, instead of the thousands of yards usually consumed.

The aircraft will be "slung" in the air and be completely air borne within 1,000 feet. The fact that the jets can be effectively and rapidly landed, refueled, armed, and launched was proven yesterday. This concept is not only possible, but very practical. The theory that was proven fact yesterday at the world's largest Marine Corps Base means that the long, time consuming task of constructing the "old style" runway is now no longer necessary. In the past, it took engineers weeks and weeks if round-the-clock construction to prepare a single landing strip capable of handling jet aircraft. Yesterday these weeks were cut down to hours, thus enabling a team of engineers to set up a Short Airfield for Tactical Support quickly to handle the jets that support today's fast Marine infantry units.

The SATS construction project here started in mid-September. Sub Unit No. 2 from Marine Air Base Squadron No. 37, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing was established and sent to our Base with components of their supply, communications, motor transport, air control, crash crew, maintenance, and administrative sections. These men have been doing their jobs in the field and living here on Base since the Sub Unit's formation in September.

Actual engineering construction of the field was accomplished by the men on the Navy Mobile Construction Battalion from Port Hueneme.

The Base SATS site is the only airfield of its type capable of arresting and catapulting jet aircraft built from scratch. What was previously a patch of barren desert land 13 miles from the main area of the Base is now a teeming, busy, semi-permanent air field, capable of handling any number of jet fighter type aircraft. It will be complete with all air traffic control services, weather instruments, refueling apparatus, and all the facilities needed to coordinate a tactical jet airfield early in 1963.

WHAT I'VE LEARNED

Heather KEASLER

Jefferson, Tx. Sgt., platoon sergeant, Installation Personnel Administration Center

Keasler enjoys studying language and culture to broaden her understanding about the world. She hopes to become a drill instructor and help make Marines who will excel above the highest military standard.

>I grew up in Jefferson, Texas. It's a small historical town. Growing up there made me passionate about history because there's a lot to appreciate. I like looking at history because a single person's small decisions can have a huge ripple effect on the future.

>In my years before the Marine Corps, I got the opportunity to live on a ranch and earn my stay taking care of horses. I still keep a close relationship with the ranchers and my favorite horse, Jeffery.

>I do a lot of outdoor activities like skateboarding, hiking, and running, but I also enjoy hobbies that challenge me mentally. I play violin and enjoy learning new languages.

>I'm interested in culture and history. Looking back in the past, creativity was a requirement for survival. Nowadays, it's easy to take technology for granted and lose creativity.

>I have an older sister and a younger brother. When I visited my family after coming home from recruit training, my brother saw the pride I had. It had some influence on him becoming a Marine.

>I spent my first enlistment at Marine Corps Recruit Depot San Diego and have been at the Combat Center since. My goal is to return to Parris Island as a drill instructor after completing Sergeant's Course.

>During my free time I practice calligraphy and stationary. I'm an old school communicator and I rarely text message people. Anything that is meaningful is worth taking the time to write. I hand-make the envelopes and seal them with my own calligraphy signature stamp.

>I want to keep motivation strong in the Fleet Marine Force. I've seen a lot of Marines nearing the end of their active service, who have dropped their packs. There will always be good and bad days, you just have to focus on what you're grateful for.

>I missed opportunities to be stationed in Guam and Okinawa, but I learned to take it as a blessing. There are a lot of opportunities the military gives us and I'm lucky to be stationed somewhere I can pursue good educational courses.

>Being a Marine can be physically and mentally demanding at times, but it's for your own good. A lot of side tasks some Marines complain about will only help them in the end. Whether you're on a working party or standing a post, learning how to adapt to challenges is going to make you a better leader when you have Marines to instruct.

>My advice is don't get upset with the small obstacles life may throw at you. If you're healthy and alive, you'll always have something to be thankful for.

U.S. Marines with Weapons Company, 1st Battalion, 7th Marine Regiment, Special Purpose Marine Air-Ground Task Force--Crisis Response--Central Command, train on a new weapons system at Al Asad Air Base, Iraq, Oct. 24, and reinforce ability to provide protection to coalition partners and resources.

The Marines are charged with the security of Al Asad, a site used by coalition members to train Iraqi Security Forces as part of the Combined Joint Task Force -- Operation Inherent Resolve's building partner capacity mission.

"We were just issued the new M252A2 Lightweight 81 mm mortar system and before we employed it in combat, we decided to get the Marines out here [Al Asad range] and get some live fires training with the system," said U.S. Marine 1st Lt. Alex Sherrod, the executive officer with Weapons Company.

During the training, Marines familiarized themselves firsthand on the functions of the system they could possibly employ in the battle space as a protection measure. The primary benefit of the training is it allowed the Marines the opportunity to hone their tactics, techniques and procedures in employment of the weapons system, further reinforcing their ability to provide protection to their coalition and Iraqi partners.

The new system is overall 10 pounds lighter than the previous mortar system and has heat reducing technology to keep the weapons system cooler than its predecessor.

The Marines fired a total of 87 rounds during the familiarization training to ensure every mortar team received ample time with the new system.

"It's a pretty cool opportunity to come out here and train," said U.S. Marine Cpl. Destry Stemme, a squad leader with Weapons Company. "It has definitely been a learning experience for me and the other Marines, and this additional training allows us to be more effective on the battlefield."

CJTF-OIR is a coalition of regional and international nations who have joined together to defeat the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant and the threat they pose to Iraq, Syria, the region and the wider international community.

Recent change to PMO access control policy

STORY BY LANCE CPL. LEVI SCHULTZ

The Provost Marshall's Office released a policy regarding access control and registration of vehicles aboard the Combat Center effective Nov. 9.

In the past, the Combat Center utilized Department of Defense decals on vehicles to ensure individuals could receive access to the installation. The new policy regarding access control resulted in decals no longer being a recognized form of access control. Valid identification cards, such as a Common Access Card or Teslin, are now required to be presented and inspected to allow access for any individual.

"They previously allowed access to installations with the DoD decal," said Gunnery Sgt. James A. Meak, physical security chief, PMO. "Before, we required that personnel be vetted through the vehicle registration office; now, if you're a military member with a valid [military] ID, you're allowed to come aboard the installation and go about freely without a visitor pass."

According to Meak, this new procedure creates a streamlined process at the entrance gates while still ensuring everything is conducted in accordance with security requirements. Permanent residents must still register their vehicles upon arrival to the installation.

"For Marines [and civilians] stationed here, we still require them to register their vehicles aboard the installation," Meak said. "This gives us a snapshot of what we have and allows us to identify vehicles a lot easier versus running their license plates."

To learn more about the policy change regarding access, control and registration of vehicles aboard the Combat Center, contact the Provost Marshal's Office at (760) 830-6800.

TOUGH MINDED

OPTIMISM

by Lou Gerhardt

This Thanksgiving I am sharing with you a revealing incident from the life of the Duke of Wellington. The Duke, as you may recall, was the British military leader who defeated Napoleon at Waterloo. The Duke was not an easy man to serve under. He was arrogant, demanding and not one to shower his subordinates with compliments.

Yet even Wellington realized that his methods left something to be desired. In his old age someone asked him what, if anything, he would do differently if he had his life to live over again. Wellington thought a moment then replied, "I'd give more praise."

Think about it, dear friends, and do not hesitate to offer praise and gratitude at every opportunity. My mother often said that we are never wrong when we offer our thanks and our praise.

This Thanksgiving give more praise to the Creator for the beauty of the earth and the glory of the skies. Give more praise to your husband or your wife. Give more praise to your children. Give more praise to your friends. Give more praise to those who serve your needs in restaurants, grocery stores and in other public places. Give more praise!

The Book of Psalms is crammed with the word PRAISE. The final words of the Book of Psalms are: "Let everything that breathes praise the Lord. Praise the Lord."

The spirit of what I have written brings to mind the insightful words of William Butler Yeats:

"I have believed the best of every man, and find that to believe it is enough to make a bad man show his very best or even a good man swing his lantern higher."

72 years later: Remembering the battle of Tarawa

PHOTOS BY CPL. MATTHEW BRAGG

A 3rd Marine Regiment color guard takes its place, July 25, during a repatriation ceremony in Tarawa, Kiribati. The ceremony honored the remains of approximately 36 Marines who fought and died during the Battle of Tarawa during World War II, and were loaded onto a C-130J Hercules aircraft to be transported back home to the United States.

STORY BY LANCE CPL. JONAH LOVY

November 2015 marks the 72nd anniversary of the Battle of Tarawa. Tarawa was the first Marine attack in the central Pacific region during World War II and is remembered as one of the fiercest engagements of the campaign.

The battle raged from Nov. 20-23, 1943, on the Tarawa Atoll in the Gilbert Islands. An atoll is a coral reef that breaches the surface of the ocean and forms an island.

It became necessary for the Marines to capture Tarawa following the fighting of Guadalcanal. The island, roughly the size of Central Park in Manhattan, N.Y., served as the site of the first American offensive in the central Pacific region.

The Battle of Tarawa was one of the most tenacious and bloodiest battles in Marine Corps History. Nearly 6,400 Japanese, Korean and U.S. service members died in the three-day battle.

An American force of 17 aircraft carriers, 12 battleships, 8 heavy cruisers, 4 light cruisers, 66 destroyers and 36 transport ships moved to the Gilbert Islands Nov. 20. This was the largest force assembled in the Pacific for a single operation.

When the U.S. force approached Tarawa, Japanese forces opened fire with artillery batteries. The Americans responded with a counter battery that neutralized a majority of the Japanese artillery.

The Marines approached the shore using small amphibious vehicles to reach the beach at low tide, forcing the infantry to wade through waist deep water to reach dry land. Enemy machine gun fire rained down on the men from the shore. The Marines who made it ashore secured the beach and waited for reinforcements.

On the morning of Nov. 21, tanks and artillery were brought by boat allowing the Marines to advance on the Japanese entrenched inland. U.S. forces captured the majority of the island on this day.

Marines pursued the remaining Japanese forces and an airstrip held by the enemy Nov. 22. By the evening, the remaining Japanese forces were either pushed back into the tiny amount of land to the east of the airstrip, or operating in several isolated pockets around the island.

When the fighting was finished only 17 Japanese soldiers survived out of the 4,700 who fought. Nearly 1,700 U.S. service members were killed and 2,101 were wounded.

“The capture of Tarawa knocked down the front door to the Japanese in the Central Pacific,” said Adm. Chester Nimitz, the commander-in-chief of U.S. Pacific Fleet during World War II.

The legacy of Tarawa lives on in the Marine Corps today. The Marines faced overwhelming odds but persevered until victorious.

Bond is Back!

'Spectre' double-O dazzles with derring-do, action & emotional depth

NEIL POND

"Spectre"

Starring Daniel Craig, Christoph Waltz and Léa Seydoux

Directed by Sam Mendes

James Bond, with his iconic "license to kill," has never been a stranger to death. And in Spectre, the latest adventure of the world's most famous secret agent, the prospect of mortality looms especially large. "The dead are alive," a cryptic sentence, is the very first thing you see on the screen, just before the face of a gigantic skeleton in a Day of the Dead parade.

But as Bond (Daniel Craig) notes at one point, "Death and dying—it's all a matter of perspective." Spectre, the 24th movie since Dr. No began the Bond franchise in 1962, may reflect on the past and even gaze into the grave, but it's vibrantly, expressively, emotionally alive and very much in step with today. Reuniting Craig with director Sam Mendes—his partner in the snap, crackle and pop of Skyfall in 2012—it begins with Bond going off the grid to wrap up some unfinished business just as the "double-O" espionage program headed by his boss, M (Ralph Fiennes), is in danger of being scrapped back in London.

A crusading young British intelligence officer, C (Andrew Scott, Moriarty on TV's Sherlock), wants to replace Bond and his "prehistoric" stalk-and-shoot derring-do with a new multi-national initiative, using global surveillance and drones to keep track of criminals—as well as everyone else.

"It's the future," C tells M. "And you're not."

M smells a big, worldwide rat, and so does Bond—and off he goes to track it down, to Mexico, Rome, Austria and the desert of North Africa, setting up some thrilling set pieces that up the ante on cinematic Bond moments. A dazzling 15-minute beaut of an opener begins as one ludicrously long, unbroken tracking shot (filmed by a drone!) down a street and into an alley, up and out of an elevator, into a hotel room, through a window and onto a rooftop—before climaxing in a building-toppling explosion, a frantic foot chase and a brutal hand-to-hand fight in an out-of-control helicopter dipping and diving over a crowded plaza filled with thousands of people.

Wow!

There's a sleek nighttime car chase, an alpine pursuit with an airplane that becomes both a bobsled and a battering ram, and a brawl in a train so slam-bang intense you expect it to cause a derailment.

Christoph Waltz plays a nefarious über-villain with a deep-rooted evil secret that haunts—and hurts—Bond in more ways than one. Former pro wrestler Dave Bautista (so memorable as the red-tattooed Drax in Guardians of the Galaxy) is a hulking wall of sneering, leering bad news—and only one teeny, tiny two-word line of dialogue.

As the latest "Bond girl," French actress Léa Seydoux gives Bond pause for something "more important" than the sometime-vicious necessities of his job. Ben Whitslaw returns as nerdy gadget master Q, and Naomie Harris is back as Moneypenny, the office assistant who's now become an invaluable assignment aide.

Will this, Craig's fourth outing as James Bond, be his last, as rumored? Time will tell. Other spies come and go, but Bond—whoever portrays him—has been the standard for more than 50 years, and Spectre finds him in fine, full, clever, super-stylish, ultra-cool, death-dodging form, very much alive and well.

"It's good to have you back, 007," M tells him at one point, welcoming him home. Yes, it bloody well double-O is!

LEGALS

Summons (Citation Judicial)
Case Number:(Numero del caso) CIVDS 1508560
NOTICE TO DEFENDANT (AVISO AL DEMANDADO):
MICHAEL A. TREMBLAY, an individual; SCOTT A. TREMBLAY, an individual; TAMARA TREMBLAY, an individual; and any and all persons unknown, claiming any legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property described in the complaint adverse to Plaintiff's title, or any cloud on Plaintiff's title thereto, and DOES 1 through 50, inclusive
YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF: (LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE): Paul A. Tremblay, an individual
Notice! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below.

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in a proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts OnlineSelf-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp) your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk or a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case. ¡AVISO! Lo han demandado. Si no responde dentro de 30 días, la corte puede decidir en su contra sin escuchar su versión. Lea la información a continuación.

Tiene 30 DÍAS DE CALENDARIO después de que le entreguen esta citación y papeles legales para presentar una respuesta por escrito en esta corte y hacer que se entregue copia al demandante. Una carta o una llamada telefónica no lo protegen. Su respuesta por escrito tiene que estar en formato legal correcto si desea que procesen su caso en la corte. Es posible que haya un formulario que usted pueda usar para su respuesta. Puede encontrar estos formularios de la corte y más información en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.sucorte.ca.gov), en la biblioteca de leyes de su condado o en la corte que le quede más cerca. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentación, pida al secretario de la corte que le dé un formulario de exención de pago de cuotas. Si no presenta su respuesta a tiempo, puede perder el caso por incumplimiento y la corte le podrá quitar su sueldo, dinero y bienes sin más advertencia.

Hay otros requisitos legales. Es recomendable que llame a un abogado inmediatamente. Si no conoce a un abogado, puede llamar a un servicio de remisión a abogados. Si no puede pagar a un abogado, es posible que cumpla con los requisitos para obtener servicios legales gratuitos de un programa de servicios legales sin fines de lucro. Puede encontrar estos grupos sin fines de lucro en el sitio web de California Legal Services (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.sucorte.ca.gov) o poniéndose en contacto con la corte o el colegio de abogados locales. AVISO: Por ley, la corte tiene derecho a reclamar las cuotas y los costos exentos por imponer un gravamen sobre cualquier recuperación de $10,000 o más de valor recibida mediante un acuerdo o una concesión de arbitraje en un caso de derecho civil. Tiene que pagar el gravamen de la corte antes de que la corte pueda desahcer el caso.
