Commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. Robert B. Neller speaks to Marines at the Combat Center, Wednesday. Neller spoke to the Marines about how they should treat each other and the importance of our culture.

Commandant visits the Combat Center for social media misconduct brief

STORY BY LANCE CPL. NATALIA CUEVAS

Commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Robert B. Neller, visited the Combat Center to speak to Marines at the base theater July 19, 2017. Neller addressed noncommissioned officers, staff noncommissioned officers, and commissioned officers about the importance of treating all Marines with the same respect, regardless of race, gender, or sexual orientation. "The Marines are the ones who tackle robbers trying to steal from stores, help old ladies cross the street; Marines are the ones called to work with kids," Neller said. "We have to always hold ourselves to that high standard of excellence and look out for one another." In addition to visiting the Combat Center, Neller stopped at Marine Corps Air Station Miramar, Marine Corps Air Station Yuma, and Marine Corps Recruit Depot San Diego as part of an initiative to address Marines aboard various installations throughout the Corps about social media misconduct and treating each other with respect and dignity in every capacity.

"I don't care if you are straight or homosexual," Neller continued. "I don't care if your black, Asian, Muslim, Christian, male or female, All I care about is the fact that you all are Marines." Additionally, Mrs. D'arcy Neller, the commandant's wife, visited the Village Center and the Education Center and met with the spouses of NCOs, SNCOs and junior officers. The luncheons encouraged Marine Corps spouses to network and socialize with each other to discuss

MARSOC Marines, sailor killed in KC-130T crash

It is with a heavy heart that U.S. Marine Corps Forces, Special Operations Command formally identifies the six Marines and Sailor who died as a result of the U.S. Marine Corps KC-130T crash in LeFlore County, Miss., at approximately 4 p.m. local time July 10, 2017. The aircraft was transporting six Marines and one Navy sailor from Marine Corps Forces, Special Operations Command and their associated equipment for routine small unit pre-deployment training at Marine Corps Air Station Yuma, Ariz. All seven were from the Camp Lejeune-based 2d Marine Raider Battalion.

Deceased are:

Staff Sgt. Robert H. Cox, 28, from Ventura, California

Staff Sgt. William J. Kundrat, 33, from Frederick, Maryland.

Sgt. Chad E. Jenson, 25, from Los Angeles, California.

Sgt. Talon R. Leach, 27, from Callaway, Missouri.

Sgt. Joseph J. Murray, 26, from Duval, Florida.

Sgt. Dietrich A. Schmieman, 26, from Benton, Washington.

U.S. Navy Petty Officer 2d Class Ryan M. Lohrey, 30, from Middleton, Indiana.

This tragic loss of life impacts the entire MARSOC family. We are committed to providing the full measure of support to the families and friends of our fallen and our thoughts and prayers are with them during this difficult time.

While the details of the crash are under investigation, MARSOC is providing all available resources and support to the family, friends and teammates of these Raiders as we all mourn this tragic loss of life.We ask that you continue to honor and respect the privacy of the families. Offers of condolences and support can be

Desert Warfare 29 Palms style

JPAO-BRAVE SHIELD XVI, exercise possible, let alone livable, Mojave Desert-Warfare doesn't always break out in the nicest locations, and nearly 3,000 Marines, airmen and soldiers have moved into the blazing Mojave Desert to tax desert supply techniques to the limit. These troops are the "opposition forces" in Brave Shield XVI.

The "bad guys," or opposition forces, do have some advantages even though they will be facing a numerically superior tank force also composed of Army, Marine and Air Force units. They will be "dug in" on the Bullion Mountain Range and Joint Task Force units ("good guys") will have to roust them out. The backbone of the ground opposition force is formed by the 2-1 Infantry Battalion, 9th Div., Ft. Lewis, Wash., and by the 3rd Battalion, 7th Marines, and 1st Marine Division. The ground troops will be supported by armored elements of the 3116th Battalion, Oregon National Guard from La Grande.

It takes a lot of work to make the

in a land of sagebrush, rock and sand where daytime temperatures often exceed 120 degrees.

The first problem is to move the necessary food and water to the opposition forces who are located more than 70 miles from the nearest adequate supply point. They must have more than 30,000 gallons of water a day for drinking and showers. They need 27,000 meals every three days.

They have to have fuel for vehicles and equipment. More than 10,000 gallons required each day for the opposition forces during the tactical phase which started July 16.

But desert conditions are rough on equipment. Sophisticated communications equipment link together aircraft, base camps and tactical units. This equipment is in need of constant repair, the victim of severe heat and dust.

The burden of all this repair work and supply falls directly on the 183rd Maintenance Co., part of the 43rd Support Group of Ft. Carson, Colo. The company has help from two other active Army units and six National Guard and Army Reserve units. The 250 men and women must labor 24 hours a day to move supplies and keep up with repairs.

"We can fix anything from a 38 cal. pistol to a M-60 battle tank," said Lieutenant Bill Nichols, Maintenance Platoon Leader for the 183rd. Lt. Nichols has only been in the Army nine months but said he's received three years' experience in the past three weeks.

The 786th Quartmaster Co., an Army Reserve unit from Logan, Utah, must supply an ever increasing amount of fuel during the tactical phase of the exercise. They have set up "hot refueling points" for helicopters. In this exercise, helicopters touch down and keep their engines running while refueling. It's not uncommon to see three or four helicopters lined up in the heat of the day, inching toward a 5,000 gallon fuel tanker as, their turn approaches.

WHAT I'VE LEARNED

Jordan

>I was born and raised in We have more training area, giv-Overland Park, Kan. It is a suburb outside of Kansas City.

>My dad was my biggest role model growing up. He was hard on me, but taught me the work ethic I have today. He never told me that he loved me until I left for the military, but he was always there for me when I needed him.

>My mother was a nurse in the emergency room. Even though she was gone a lot, she showed me the emotional support that my dad didn't. They balanced each other out a lot.

>Being the youngest of four brothers was hard growing up. I took up wrestling in high school, which took me from being at the bottom of the totem pole to almost at the top amongst my brothers.

>When I was finishing up high school. I didn't think I could or would even want to take up college at the time. I decided to enlist in the Marine Corps as a grunt.

>My brother and I went to boot camp together, which helped a lot. We've been around each other our entire lives. I went into boot camp thinking that 13 weeks wouldn't be that long; I was very wrong. Having him there helped. At night when most people didn't have anyone to talk to, I could talk to him.

>My brother is getting stationed in Miramar pretty soon, which means that we will be able to see each other quite often.

>The best part about training aboard the Combat Center is that we don't have the same restrictions as Marines in Camp Pendleton. when the time comes.

ing us more possibilities. Though the weather is rough, the training is good.

>I'm ready to put my training to use on my upcoming deployment overseas. On a combat deployment it is important to keep a focused mindset because you might have to send rounds down range, even when you're standing post.

>I try to get out and go around California every weekend if I can, whether it's going to Palm Springs to get out of the area or head to LA to see friends that I went to high school with.

>The one saying that I have always lived by is, "Do what you love and you will never work a day in your life." Life is short and you only get one opportunity. I feel like if you work at a corporate job doing the same thing every day, you'll look back and realize you never took any chances. That's one of the reasons why I joined the infantry so, if anything, I can look back and say that I was a grunt in the Corps.

>My biggest role model in the Marine Corps has to be my squad leader, Sgt. Jacob Clement. The amount of outstanding information he has about our occupational field pushes me to work harder to get better. He definitely leads from the front. Anything he asks us to do he is always willing to help. >When I get out of the Marine Corps I plan on attending college for computer engineering. My father started his own engineering company and I hope to take over the business

Beat the heat: Sandy Hill Lanes offers indoor recreation

STORY BY LANCE CPL. ISAAC CANTRELL

As summer continues to heat up, and hot winds sweep through the desert, Combat Center Marines are beginning to search for new sources of recreation. Sandy Hill Lanes Bowling Center offers a perfect solution to Marines, sailors and families in search of amusement.

Located south of the East Gym on 4th street on base, Sandy Hill Lanes has 20 well-maintained lanes, as well as a wide variety of arcade games. Patrons have the option to play music of their choosing on the center's jukebox, and food and beverages are available for purchase. According to Marissa Lewis, an assistant manager at the bowling center, Sandy Hill Lanes is a great place for anyone looking to blow off steam.

"Bowling is a way to

If Marines or sailors want to bowl after a long day at work they can come in, get something to eat, something to drink, and get out of the heat"

relax and get away from the stresses of whatever is going on in life," Lewis said. "The good thing about bowling is that you don't have to be good at it to have fun. With bowling, you can throw gutterballs all day long and have the time of your life, or you can throw strikes all day long and have the time of your life. It really doesn't matter what your experience level is."

After 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, Sandy Hill Lanes offers an experience unlike most bowling alleys: cosmic bowling. During cosmic bowling, the lights throughout the center are dimmed down, black lights are turned on and laser displays are projected around the lanes. Cosmic bowling is open to all ages, and offers a very fun and unique atmosphere.

Since Sandy Hill Lanes is located on base, Marines and sailors are permitted to bowl in their MARPAT uniforms. The bowling center is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays, so service members are able to go in at lunch and after work.

"If Marines or sailors want to bowl after a long day at work they can come in, get something to eat, something to drink, and get out of the heat," Lewis said.

The bowling center is also conducting a summer program for children. Until September 30, kids are able to bowl two games for free each day. To take advantage of this program, children must be registered at www. KidsBowlFree.com/ usmc. The site also offers family passes, which allows up to four adults to register.

Lanes Sandy Hill Bowling Center also offers coaching, ball fitting, drilling, resurfacing, polishing and assistance for special orders through their pro shop, Koster's Korner. All services offered through the pro shop are available by appointment only, which can be m a d e by calling 830-6422.

The Sandy Hills Bowling Center had its Grand Re-Opening and 35th Anniversary Celebration, Jan. 29. The bowling center now has interactive games to play while bowling and touch-screen control panels, which can link up to Facebook to let family and friends know how well a game is going.

Combat Center supports summer reading program

TWENYNINE PALMS, Calif., - The Combat Center's Provost Marshal's office held a military working dog demonstration for local residents, during a summer reading program at the Twentynine Palms Public Library, July 13, 2017.

The MWD section supports the continuing effort to foster a positive relationship with the community by providing education on MWD procedures and protocol.

The library's summer reading program, Gear Up and Read, is a seven-week program aimed toward promoting literacy throughout the local community. The program is open to all ages and participants are eligible to win prizes for reading on allotted amount of books for the week.

"We like to have community involvement with our programs and the military is an important part of this community," said Michael Jacome, Branch Manager, Twentynine Palms Public Library.

Four dogs participated in the presentation. The handlers helped to demonstrate the MWD's strength, obedience and discipline to more than 30 reading program participants. The dogs obeyed commands to attack their targets, heel and escort people to designated areas, always keeping an eye on the target to ensure the safety of their handler. MWD handlers tested the dog's obedience by changing commands throughout the demonstration.

"Coming out to the community shows what resources [they] have and what we are capable of doing," said Lance Cpl. Julian Norris, MWD handler, PMO. "I think it's a fun time to be with the kids and to show everyone what we do."

During the presentation, the children pressed clos-

"If you want to do anything Marine-like you have to go on-base and it all seems so separate," said Victoria

Explore Joshua Tree National Park; a nature getaway

The Observation Post staff headed to Joshua Tree National Park to explore the high desert July 12, 2013. The park has trails for all-day hikes into the back-country, campgrounds available by permit and an extensive network of dirt roads that makes for less crowded and safer cycling than the paved main roads. Joshua Tree is also a popular rock climbing venue.

STORY BY CPL. DAVE FLORES

JOSHUA TREE, Calif. – In the Southern Mojave Desert, the terrain is characterized by most as harsh and unforgiving. But located within that vast landscape is an area that many would consider a tranquil sanctuary.

Every year, more than two million people come from around the world to visit Joshua Tree National Park. Sitting north of the Coachella Valley, and neighboring the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center, the park provides endless opportunities such as hiking, camping and world renowned rock climbing. It's no wonder to learn why locals and tourists alike flock to this peaceful outdoor wonderland. Minerva Hamilton Hoyt, an activist born into a well-to-do family and raised on a plantation in Mississippi, moved to Pasadena, California when she married her husband, Albert Hoyt. She fell in love with desert horticulture, particularly with cacti and Joshua Trees. With the production of a cheaper automobile in the early 20th century, many of the residents of California's coast wanted the flora of this arid landscape to use in their home landscaping. After her husband's death in 1918, she dedicated her life to protecting what she loved, Joshua Trees and the desert where they can be found.

a national monument. In 1936, Hoyt and the National Park Service convinced President Theodore Roosevelt to sign a presidential proclamation establishing the area as Joshua Tree National Monument.

When President Bill Clinton signed the California Desert Protection of 1994, Joshua Tree Monument was then recognized as a national park for California's desert. Along with being given the title of national park, JTNP was allotted 250,000 more acres of land for preservation.

Joshua Tree National Park has a rich history when it comes to great people like Minerva Hovt. who fought to have the beauty of the desert preserved," said George Land, public information officer, National Park Services. "Now that we have saved this land, we want people to enjoy it." Within the more than 750,000 acres of the national park, there is something for almost everyone. Rock climbing has become a huge attraction in JTNP. According to Land, more than 300,000 climbers have visited the park in 2016 alone. From amateur climbers looking to gain experience, to advanced climbers who are seeking a thrill, there is a vast selection of different climbing routes to choose from. For visitors who are content with the observing the landscape and wildlife, they may be fortunate enough to spot the California tree frog, a black-tailed jack rabbit or the illustrious desert tortoise. Some consider driving through JTPN as an attraction in itself.

"The scenery of Joshua Tree National Park changes throughout the park as you drive from entrance to entrance," said Land. "Some families just take the day to stop off at different exhibits throughout."

After the sun sets, one of the treasures of the park is revealed. With the park separated from the busy cities of Southern California by more than 95 nautical miles, light pollution has a limited effect on the night sky when compared to large urban areas such as Los Angeles and San Diego. The park's elevation and dry desert air offers visitors clear skies for stargazing.

For Marines, sailors and their families stationed aboard the Combat Center, the national park is most commonly accessed through Utah Trail off of Highway 62 in Twentynine Palms and off of Park Avenue in Joshua Tree. According to their website www.nps. gov/, the National Park Service issues an annual pass offering free entrance to all national parks for active duty military members, their dependents and disabled veterans. Whether for a weekend trip or just a few hours, the national park symbolizes more than preserved land in Southern California; it's become a refuge for history, culture and a therapeutic connection to the natural world.
