On a warm summer night friends and family, young and old gather to celebrate. The sounds of live music, excited chatter and laughter fill the air as children leap and bound with glow sticks in hand; a precursor to the spectacular fireworks display that will soon illuminate the desert sky.

Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center Marines, family members and friends joined the Morongo Basin community to celebrate Independence Day at Luckie Park in Twentynine Palms, Calif., and Brehm Youth Sports Park in Yucca Valley, Calif., Monday.

The Combat Center Color Guard participated in the Yucca Valley celebration; presenting the colors while the national anthem played and the Headquarters Battalion Color Guard participated in the Twentynine Palms celebration. Additionally, communities synchronized their firework displays to music provided by local radio station, Z101.7.

"We want to be able to show our service members our appreciation," said Robin Schlosser, executive director, Reach Out

USMC changes PT standards

The Marine Corps has announced July 1 that revisions have been made to its physical fitness program, to include the Physical Fitness Test (PFT), Combat Fitness Test (CFT) and the Body Composition Program (BCP). Changes to BCP will take effect immediately, while PFT and CFT changes will be implemented starting Jan. 1, 2017. The PFT changes are among the most profound since 1972 and the changes to the CFT standards are the first since its inception in 2009.

Ripper Academy; Marines teach Marines

STORY BY LANCE CPL. LEVI SCHULTZ

Whether in air, on land or sea, Marines are always looking for new and improved ways to train. Ripper Academy, 7th Marine Regiment's latest training development, is a video streaming channel designed for Marines and sailors to view and share video content.

Ripper Academy, hosted within the MarineNet learning management system, provides instructional material prior to scheduled training or courses. This better prepares both learner and instructor so they may make more effective use of practical application time.

Four C&E Marines save woman’s life

A 26-year-old woman owes her life to four Marine students from the Marine Corps Communication-Electronics School who found her lying injured and suffering from exposure after she fell from a rocky ledge into Tahquitz Canyon near Palm Springs.

Privates First Class Russell D. Davis, Timothy A. Frost, Warren E. Kimmel, and Private Michael A. Barker were on weekend liberty and hiking through the area when they discovered the women around 2 p.m., June 29.

Polic later said the women had been lying there for two days and probably would have died by the next morning if the Marines had not found her.

PFC Davis, 20, of Independence, Kan., said he heard weird noises coming from the canyon as he and his buddies hiked along the ledge above it.

“At first, I thought it might be a baby bear or a cat whining down there,” PFC Davis said. “But I wasn’t sure, so I told the other guys I wanted to check it out.”

PFC Davis said he had to hike nearly a kilometer in order to find a safe passage into the canyon because the drop over the ledge was more than one hundred feet.

“I found her lying by a pool near a waterfall, propped up on a rock,” he said. “She was hurt real bad and was still bleeding a little.”

PFC Davis said he shouted to the three other Marines to go find help. PFC Kimmel, 21, of Round-up, Mont., and PFC Front, 24, of Duncanville, Texas, hiked back to a nearby mobile home park where they had left their car, found a telephone, and notified the Palm Springs Police Department.

Meanwhile, Pvt. Barker, 19, of Cedar Lake, Ind., hiked into the canyon carrying blankets and water.

“She was really out of it,” Pvt. Barker said. “She was conscious, kind of, but really dazed. It was a miracle that she even survived the fall.”

PFC Davis and Pvt. Barker said they tried treating her wound which, by then, was infected and covered with flies. They gave her water, covered her with blankets, and waited for help to arrive.

Within an hour, officers to the Palm Springs Mounted Police arrived in the area and later called in a helicopter. Paramedics rappelled from the helicopter into the canyon and removed the women to Desert Hospital in Palm Springs.

As of Tuesday, Anna Myaea was listed in satisfactory condition at Desert Hospital, but a hospital spokesman said she would remain on bedrest for at least several more days.

According to the spokesman, Ms. Myaea was suffering from a broken pelvic and vertebrae as well as lacerations on her head and body. Although conscious most of the time, she was still incoherent and unable to remember her local address or anything about the accident.

The four Marines are members of Student Company “A” in the Basic electronics Course at the Marine Corps Communication-Electronics School aboard the Combat Center. PFCs Frost and Kimmell and Pvt. Barker will graduate July 31 and PFC Davis will graduate August 3.

WHAT I'VE LEARNED

Francisco

Phoenix, AZ. Lance Corporal, reproduction specialist, Combat Camera, Headquarters Battalion

BRITORAMIREZ

>I was born in California but I have lived in Phoenix for the past 11 years; it's definitely where I would call home. Being out here in Twentynine Palms is a lot like Phoenix and so I love it.

>Before I could even walk, my dad would put a soccer ball in between my feet when I was in the crib. It's all I've known since I could remember. Soccer has helped me learn discipline and mold myself into the man I am today.

>Soccer required me to learn patience. There were times during practice when I would want to give up and quit but my coaches, family and friends helped me build the confidence in myself. I also learned how to push myself without the assistance of others and developed the ability to stick with things even when they get rough.

>The lessons soccer has taught me have transitioned into the Marine Corps quite well. While on the soccer field, leaders are required to take charge of the team to guide their peers, keep them calm when things get hectic and ensure morale stays high.

>As a child I was very sick and I was always in and out of the hospital. I'm grateful for my parents because they would literally give up anything to take care of me. They would skip meals to able to afford my medicine. They sacrificed a lot when it came to raising me. Even though my upbringing was rough, I never complained about it because it made me stronger.

>I sat down with them after I joined the Marine Corps and thanked them for how hard they worked to provide for me.

>Aside from my parents, my biggest role model was my step-father. When my mother remarried, I was very weary and distant from him. As time went on I realized he made my mother genuinely happy. I now try to emulate that with my wife.

>I married the girl I've been with for over six years. I try to make her as happy as my step-father makes my mom. She stuck with me through the awkward phases of my life, from the long hair and acne to the fauxhawk soccer-player phase.

>I am excited to have children in the future because of the relationship that I had with my younger siblings. When my parents were going through their divorce I tried to teach them to be the best they can be. What really hit me was last year when they called me on Father's Day and thanked me. Even though I'm not their father, they treated me like an important father figure.

>When I get older, I would love to have a home where all people are accepted and could stay if they needed to. It wouldn't matter their sexual orientation, religion or race, I would want them to feel welcome. Every human being deserves respect; nothing should change that.

>I live by the saying, "Don't forget where you came from and always remember where your roots lie."

>I love what I do in the Marine Corps, I work with graphic design and I would like to pursue that outside of the Corps. It tran-

Carter Thanks DoD Personnel

DOD NEWS, DEFENSE MEDIA ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON, July 01, 2016 — As Americans prepare to celebrate Independence Day, Defense Secretary Ash Carter issued a message today thanking the men and women of the Defense Department for upholding the principles upon which the nation was founded.

Here is the text of the secretary’s message:

To all of the men and women of the Department of Defense, it is an honor to join you in celebration of Independence Day. As you serve on every ship and every base, in every time zone and every domain, you uphold the ideals enshrined in the Declaration of Independence. For our nation and for so many others around the world, you protect and further the self-evident truths that we are created equal, endowed with unalienable rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

These ideals are more than a pinnacle to strive for. They are the North Star that has guided every generation in the long line of patriots who have stepped forward to defend our nation since the day it was founded 240 years ago. And they are the principles that must continue to guide us every day.

As Americans celebrate this important day at home and around the world, my thoughts and my gratitude are with all of you and your families. To all of you, have a happy and safe Fourth of July. May God bless you, and may God bless the great nation we defend.

President joins troops for Independence Day

DOD NEWS, DEFENSE
MEDIA ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON, July 02, 2016 — In his weekly address issued today, President Barack Obama noted that he, First Lady Michelle Obama, and their two daughters will be hosting hundreds of service members, military veterans and their families at the traditional White House cookout on Independence Day, July 4.

The president also praised the First Lady and Dr. Jill Biden, wife of Vice President Joe Biden, for their efforts on behalf of service members, military families and veterans as part of their Joining Forces initiative. In his address, the president highlighted the First Lady's and Dr. Biden's efforts that have resulted in the streamlining of professional licensing or certification processes in 50 states, which benefits military spouses who are often called upon to move their families due to duty assignment changes.

Here is the text of the president's address:

Hi everybody, and Happy Fourth of July weekend. On Monday, Michelle, Malia, Sasha, and I will celebrate the Fourth like most of you -- in the backyard. We'll hang out with family and friends, throw some burgers and dogs on the grill, and watch the fireworks show.

Of course, we're fortunate enough to have the South Lawn as our backyard. So we're also going to fill it with hundreds of our troops, our veterans, and their families. Over the past seven and a half years, it's become one of my favorite traditions. We get to celebrate our freedoms while doing what we can to honor all those who serve and sacrifice to make that freedom possible.

And I know that honoring our service members, our veterans, and their families is something that so many Americans try to do every day, without fanfare, or expectation of anything in return.

For the past five years, Michelle and Dr. Jill Biden have tried to follow the example of so many of those Americans with their Joining Forces initiative. They've rallied businesses to hire more than 1.2 million veterans and military spouses, and helped reduce veteran homelessness. And just this week, Michelle and Jill announced a breakthrough on a concern they've heard again and again from the military spouses they spend so much time with -- and that's the issue of professional licensing.

A young girl snaps a salute for President Barack Obama as he greets members of the military and their families on the White House's South Lawn on Independence Day, July 4, 2011.

This is something that most Americans aren't familiar with. But for military families, it's a big challenge. Here's why. Our troops are often transferred from base to base. It's part of the job. And because their families serve with them, that means their spouses move ten times more often than the rest of us. Ten times more often. That's tough on a career. And more than one in three of these spouses works in a profession that requires a professional license or certification. Nurses. Childcare providers. Accountants. Social workers. And lots of other jobs.

And until recently, when these spouses were asked to move across state lines, they often needed to re-certify for a job they're already qualified for. A nurse with years of experience might have to take entry-level classes, or pay a fee, or wait months for paperwork to be processed before he or she could get back to work on the job they love and that lets them support their families.

It didn't make any sense. So we changed it. When Michelle and Jill took up this cause five years ago, only three states had taken action on military spouse licensing. But they rallied governors and state legislatures to action. And this week, we reached a milestone. Today, all fifty states have acted to streamline many of these licensing issues. This is a big step forward, but we're not done yet. We're going to keep working with states to make licensing simpler for more jobs and reach more qualified workers. But we can finally say to so many of our military families -- when you move, you'll no longer be forced to put the career you love on hold just because you and your families have chosen to serve this country.

That's what this is about -- serving our men and women in uniform as well as they have served us. But you don't have to be a governor or a First Lady to make a difference. So this holiday weekend, take a look at JoiningForces.gov to find out how you can serve the troops, veterans, and military families in your community.

And to all our brave men and women in uniform -- you represent the best of who we are as a nation. On this day and every day, we thank you.

Morongo Basin. “Many of these Marines and sailors are far away from home and we want them to feel like family here in the community. This is a great way to get both communities to interact.”

Each community’s celebration included food and other vendors, live entertainment by bands On Tapp and Desert Sol, bounce houses and booths offering face painting. The night came to a close with a synchronized crescendo of light and sound that reached across the Morongo Valley Basin from Yucca Valley to Twentynine Palms.

“It’s nice to know the communities support us,” said Cpl. Armando Gonzalez, welder, 1st Tank Battalion. “The coordination with Z101.7 radio station and Yucca Valley was amazing; they had one of the best firework shows I’ve seen.”

University’s College of Distance Education and Training,” said Col. William Vivian, commanding officer, 7th Marine Regiment. “It’s a YouTube-like channel implemented to determine if short, high-quality videos can help accelerate skill mastery for a variety of things.”

The academy allows individual Marines the ability to upload and share video amongst all users. The system, regulated by a reviewing process, allows only unclassified video with clearly defined training and education value to be viewed. So far, Marines have uploaded videos of professional military education classes ranging from how to operate a Motorola PRC-153 Integrated Intra-squad Radio to basic infantry tactics.

“The whole idea is to get Marines, especially sergeants and below, to get excited about Ripper Academy, to create high quality videos and share their knowledge with their peers,” Vivian said. “The goal is to accelerate the maturing of younger Marines. We are trying to give the Marines every advantage to have access to the information needed to do their jobs to the best of their ability.”

TOUGH MINDED OPTIMISM

by Lou Gerhardt

Steve is a superior writer. Read and Enjoy.

IF ONLY
(Notes from Steve Kanold’s Travel Diary)

It happened on a bright, cloudless day in the former Kingdom of Tibet, high in the Himalayas. I was escorting a tour of the capital, Lhasa, dubbed “The Rooftop In The Sky” due to the city’s 12,000 ft. elevation, and stopped to catch my breath while exploring the imposing Potola Palace, home of the exiled Dalai Lama. While our guide continued ascending endless steps leading into the Palace with the group, I lingered in a shady courtyard and noticed a pair of Chinese teenage girls giggling and taking photos with their smart phones. I asked them where they were from, and they answered Shanghai.

“Why Lhasa?” I asked. “Why did you choose to come here?”

In perfect English, one smiled and, pointing above, sighed, “We both wanted to see what a blue sky looked like. If only we could live here!” Having traveled to industrial Shanghai on the East China Sea in the past, I can attest to the city’s polluted air. It was true—I had never experienced a smog-free day there, and as thin as the atmosphere was in Tibet, the sky’s color was undeniably azure.

Later that day at our hotel, a bellman delivered a shirt I had ordered and at my invitation, stayed a few moments to chat. Mark Qie, as he was named, lamented that the Chinese government now ruled Tibet and natives like himself were seldom granted permission to travel outside the country.

“Where would you go, if you could?” I asked him. “Shanghai,” he answered, “to experience the sea. If only I were allowed to visit Shanghai....”

STRONGER, FASTER AND FITTER: CMC OVERHAULS USMC FITNESS PROGRAM

STORY BY SGT. CUONG LE

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Maryland -- The Marine Corps has announced today that revisions have been made to its physical fitness program, to include the Physical Fitness Test (PFT), Combat Fitness Test (CFT) and the Body Composition Program (BCP). Changes to BCP will take effect immediately, while PFT and CFT changes will be implemented starting Jan. 1, 2017.

The PFT changes are among the most profound since 1972 and the changes to the CFT standards are the first since its inception in 2009.

“Last November we began a comprehensive review of physical fitness and body composition standards,” said Gen. Robert B. Neller, the 37th Commandant of the Marine Corps. “Subsequent efforts focused on developing a physical fitness program that incentivizes behavior toward an end state of a healthy and fit force able to better answer the call in any clime and place.”

Immediate changes to the BCP include an increase in the height and weight standards for females, better equipment for determining height and weight for all Marines and the BCP waiver authority will be passed from the deputy commandant of Manpower and Reserve Affairs to the first general officer in a Marine’s chain of command.

The Marine Corps has taken physical performance into consideration when considering BCP. Marines scoring 285 and higher on both the PFT and CFT will now be exempt from height and weight standards. Marines who score between 250 and 284 will have their maximum body fat percentage increased by one percent.

So for example, if a Marine has a maximum body fat percentage is 19 percent, with a score between 250 and 284 on both the PFT and CFT, he or she will be allowed to go up to 20 percent body fat.

Changes to the PFT include a pull-up/push-up hybrid for both males and females. This eliminates the option for the flex arm hang for females starting in January.

Although Marines can earn points by doing either of the exercises, the maximum amount of points a Marine can earn doing push-ups is 70 points versus 100 if they chose to do pull-ups. This means the highest PFT score a Marine can earn if they chose to do push-ups is 270. The primary benefits of incorporating the pull-up/push-up option for all Marines is that it incentivizes Marines to improve their pull-ups while ensuring gains of upper body strength across the force.

Marines will also have to complete more crunches for maximum score on their next PFT, with scoring being age and gender normed. There will be a slight adjustment to the three-mile run for Marines in high age brackets, too. The PFT and CFT age brackets will change from four age groups to eight. The new groups are as follows: 17-20, 21-25, 26-30, 31-35, 36-40, 41-45, 46-50, and 51+.

Changes to the CFT will consist of adjusted scoring for all three events to correspond with the eight age brackets. The most drastic change will be with the ammo can lifts (ACL) where male Marines age 31-35 will have to complete 120 ACLs for a perfect score vice 97, and female Marines age 26-30 will have to complete 75 ACLs for a perfect score vice 63.

Another change to the CFT is all Marines will perform five push-

“Last November we began a comprehensive review of physical fitness and body composition standards.”

— Gen. Robert B. Neller

ups instead of three push-ups during the maneuver under fire portion of the test.

“The new PFT and CFT standards raise the bar on physical fitness for all Marines,” said Maj. Gen. James W. Lukeman, commanding general, Training and Education Command. “Marines today are stronger, faster and fitter than ever and these changes reflect that. Bigger and stronger often means heavier, so tying performance on the PFT and CFT to changes to the Body Composition Program are improvements that we think the Marines will appreciate. In the end, it’s all about improving the readiness and combat effectiveness of our Corps and the physical fitness of every Marine contributes to that.”

TECOM will monitor the effects of these adjustments for two years and then adjust if required to ensure the standards contribute to the effectiveness of the force.

Additional details, including the new PFT/CFT scoring tables, physical fitness training recommendations and BCP adjustments are available at: <https://fitness.usmc.mil>. Follow-on MARADMINS and instructional products will further address details of the changes and the associated Marine Corps Orders will be updated accordingly.

PFT / CFT / BCP AGE GROUPS:

PFT   > EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 2017

ALL MARINES WILL HAVE THE OPTION OF DOING PULL-UPS OR PUSH-UPS BUT, MAXIMUM SCORE CAN ONLY BE REACHED BY DOING PULL-UPS

CFT  EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 2017

MARINES WILL HAVE TO EXECUTE 5 PUSH-UPS INSTEAD OF 3 DURING THE MANEUVER UNDERFIRE FOLLOWING THE SIMULATED GRENADE THROW

The Real Ghost Busters

Husband and wife partners fight 1970s demons ‘across the pond’

NEIL POND

‘The Conjuring 2’
Starring Patrick Wilson and Vera Farmiga
Directed by James Wan
Rated R

Beating the much-ballyhooed new Ghostbusters to the screen by several weeks, director James Wan shakes things up with a spook-fest of another kind—the second serving of his Conjuring series, based on the case files of real-life paranormal investigators Ed and Lorraine Warren, who claimed to have investigated more than 10,000 incidents since the 1950s.

This time, fresh off the 1970s investigation that became New York’s “Amityville Horror,” the Warrens are summoned across the pond to a working-class London borough, where a single mother and her four young children are being tormented by what seem to be malicious spirits.

Oh, yeah! Patrick Wilson and Vera Farmiga once again portray the Warrens, a couple whose individual childhood brushes with the supernatural eventually led them to each other, into a paranormal partnership and marriage. The movie’s soft little subplot about their strong bond, scored to the recurring Elvis hit “Can’t Help Falling in Love”

(which Wilson even gets to sing as a serenade, with a guitar!), is a dollop of pure sweetness in the carnival of creepiness.

Young Madison Wolfe, 11, who plays the Janet, the “pos- sessed” youngest daughter of the British family, may look like a greenhorn, but you’ve likely already seen her if you watch TV, on Zoo, Scream, The Astronaut Wives Club or True Detective, or in the mov- ies The Campaign, Trumbo or Joy. She’s terrific as the bedev- ilments in her home send her flying into the air, crashing into walls, teleporting from room to room and taking control of her voice, personality and body.

Wan, who also directed the original Saw and Insidious, cer- tainly knows his way around a haunted house. He never over- does the cheap thrills or gotchas, and he gets genuine jolts out of some truly nightmarish imag- es—particularly a demonic nun and the “crooked man” from the old nursery rhyme. But he also has fun with bone-chilling scares he builds around mun- dane, everyday objects, like a blinking, bleeping toy fire truck, a bedroom poster of smiling actor-singer David Soul and a TV remote that won’t stay where it’s put.

The movie will probably feel a bit familiar, at times, to any- one who’s seen The Exorcist, it could stand to be trimmed by at least 20-25 minutes, and some- one should have told the music department that just because a movie is set in England, you don’t have to use songs by the Bee Gees, the Hollies and the Clash if they don’t really fit.

As the Warrens wrestle with demons, they also wrangle with questions of belief and doubt, skepticism and proof. “Your visions are a gift from God,” Ed reassures Lorriane, who worries that her trance-like visits to the “dark side” have shown her too much, especially about what might become her own future. The movie frames the Enfield hauntings, which actually took place over a two- year period, in a Christmas set- ting, with prominent decora- tions on display and weirdly dissonant versions of familiar carols signaling that something unholy is afoot. In one scene, a freaked-out Lorraine stabs and shreds pages of her Bible with an ink pen.

If you’re easily spooked, The Conjuring 2 may not be the most relaxing way to spend your pop- corn dollar. On the other hand, if you like getting the good, old-fashioned hell scared out of you, then step right up for a retro terror trip to re-live another harrowing, real-life event from the annals of America’s original ghost busters.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY
All real estate advertising in this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 as amended, which makes it illegal to advertise "any preference, limitation or discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin, or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination."

This newspaper will not knowingly accept any advertisement for real estate which is in violation of the law. Our readers are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised in this newspaper are available on an equal opportunity basis. To complain of discrimination, call HUD toll-free at 1-800-424-8590.

EMPLOYMENT ADVERTISING POLICY
This newspaper does not knowingly accept employment ads that indicate an age preference, from employers covered by the Age Discrimination Act, or knowingly accept ads expressing a preference of sex, where no bona fide occupational qualification exists under the Fair Employment Act from employers covered by that act. NOTICE TO READERS
California law requires that contractors taking jobs that total $500 or more (labor or materials) must be licensed by the Contractors State License Board. State law also requires that contractors include their license number on all advertising. You can check the status of your licensed contractor at www.cslb.ca.gov or by calling 800-321-CSLB. Unlicensed contractors taking jobs that total less than $500 must state in their advertisements that they are not licensed by the Contractors State License Board.

Please carefully evaluate any services advertised, and do not use that service unless you have checked the references, and know and understand all terms of agreement and conditions between you and the advertiser.

California State law requires that contractors, builders, and landscapers who perform work for $500 or more, including materials and labor, must be licensed. License numbers should be so indicated in their advertising.

Family child care providers are required by state law to be licensed, and facility license numbers must be indicated in all advertising. Unlicensed contractors should also be indicated in their advertising.

Please refer questions to Contractors State License Board, 1250 East Cooley Drive, Suite 200, Colton, CA 92324

GENERAL POLICY
Please check your ad the first day it runs to see that all the information is correct. This will ensure your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the very first day your ad appears to make any changes or corrections. This way, we can credit you for the first day if any error occurred. The Publisher wants to do everything possible within the confines of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your products or services to your best advantage. The newspaper does reserve the right to edit or reject any copy or illustration.
